

Syllabus Planning Calendar for One-Day-a-Week Courses

Below are Planning Calendars for One-Day-a-Week Courses to help faculty develop their syllabi. Senate policy requires one-day-a-week courses to have at least 9 instructional meetings per quarter. In quarters where two or more holidays fall on a Monday, this requires a switch of Monday only and Wednesday only classes. The years and quarters where this occurs are indicated on the calendars.

You will note that due to observed holidays the number of instructional meetings for one-day-a-week courses varies from 11 to 9. However, most are at the norm of 10. The calendars can be used to schedule courses with significant or difficult content on days that have at least 10 meetings.

The CSU requires a minimum number of instructional days (defined as Mondays through Fridays) for the year. We are always just at this minimum. As a result, even though some one-day-a-week courses have 11 meetings, we cannot reduce the meetings to 10 without dropping below the required minimum number of instructional days for the year.
