

Yole Correa-Zoli, Professor Emerita of the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures, Passed Away September 11, 2012.

Yole Correa-Zoli, Professor Emerita of the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures, passed away September 11, 2012. She began her career at CSU, Hayward (East Bay) in 1971 on a part-time basis and was appointed Assistant Professor in the fall of 1972. She taught Italian language and literature and was the Faculty Representative to the International Programs Council for several years. Prof. Correa-Zoli retired in June, 1994.

The following appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle on September 18, 2012:

Yole Correa Zoli

Was born on April 25, 1927 in Florence, Italy. She passed through death to a new life on September 11, 2012 in Millbrae, CA. Her devoted husband of 57 years Anthony Correa, her cousins and their families in Faenza, Italy and her nieces, nephews and their families in Durango, Mexico hold her in their minds and hearts. After receiving a BA from San Francisco State University and a PhD in linguistics from Stanford University, Professor Correa-Zoli taught at California State University, Hayward for 23 years. In retirement she continued to teach classes in language and culture sponsored by the City of Millbrae until she could no longer advance her life's work. A private memorial celebration is to be held. To be mindful of Professor Correa-Zoli and literacy in the life of all people, please volunteer in or contribute to an educational program of your choice.

Published in San Francisco Chronicle on September 18, 2012